

What Do You Want?

Boards?

Yesterday Journal "Wants" gained 438 over corresponding day last year.

Advertise It in the Journal.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

AND ADVERTISER.

NO. 5,460.

Copyright, 1897, by W. R. Hearst.—NEW YORK, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1897.—16 PAGES.

PRICE ONE CENT

In Greater New York; Elsewhere, and Jersey City, TWO CENTS.

MILLIONS TO PULLMAN'S GIRLS; THE SONS GET ALMOST NOTHING.

Sons of Pullman, the Millionaire, Put on Short Allowance by His Will.

Exclusive Announcement That the Twins Were Practically Disinherited, Made in the Journal on October 21, Now Verified by the Filing of the Palace Car Magnate's Will.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—As was exclusively announced in the New York Journal of October 21 would be the case, the will of the late millionaire, George M. Pullman, filed for probate this afternoon, leaves his twin sons with a comparative pittance—thus practically disinheriting them.

The remarkable provisions of the will in which this act is taken runs as follows:

Inasmuch as neither of my sons has developed such a sense of responsibility as to invest his money in real estate, and inasmuch as I have been unable to find any other suitable person to whom I can entrust my money, I hereby bequeath to my sons, George M. Pullman, Jr., and William B. Pullman, the sum of $100,000 each, to be paid to them in equal shares, to be used by them as they see fit.

Accordingly, I direct that out of the remainder of my estate, after satisfying the provisions hereinafter made for my wife and children, and after the payment of all my debts, I bequeath to my sons, George M. Pullman, Jr., and William B. Pullman, the sum of $100,000 each, to be paid to them in equal shares, to be used by them as they see fit.

Bulk for the Daughters.

The bulk of the estate goes to the two daughters, Mrs. Frank O. Lowdon, of Chicago, and Mrs. Frank O. Lowdon, of San Francisco, who receive $1,000,000 each, and also the residuary estate of the amount of which is now unknown, except to the executor. The homestead at the corner of Franklin and Madison streets, Chicago, the construction of which cost $200,000, with the furniture, pictures, etc., is devised to his wife for life, and she is also to receive $200,000 for the first year and thereafter, during her life, the income of $125,000.

"Castle Rest," one of the "Thousand Islands," is given to the daughter, Mrs. Frank O. Lowdon, for life. She is requested to keep "Castle Rest" open from July 25 to August 14 for the accommodation of all the descendants of the testator's parents, and is authorized to designate in her will who shall have the property after her death. A sum of $100,000 is left in trust for its maintenance.

The sum of $2,000,000 is left in trust for the daughters until they are thirty-five years old, when each is to receive $500,000 to become hers absolutely, the other $1,500,000 to be still held in trust, the income going to them. If either daughter leaves issue, the sum held in trust is to become absolutely the property of such issue.

FANCIULLI MUST LEAVE.

Marine Band Leader Chagrined That His Application for Re-enlistment Has Been Denied.

Washington, Oct. 27.—On the recommendation of the Colonel-Commandant, Charles Heywood, of the Marine Corps, Secretary Long has decided that the interests of the service will be best served by the appointment of a new leader for the Marine Band, in place of Professor Francisco Fanciulli, whose five-year enlistment expires on the 30th next. Professor Zimmerman, leader of the Naval Academy Band, at Annapolis, will succeed Fanciulli.

It will be remembered that during the last Decoration Day parade here the Professor engaged in controversy with Lieutenant Herbert L. Draper, commanding officer of the marine detachment, about the character of the music selected for the band, and was ordered to leave the column and report to the barracks under arrest for insubordination.

He was afterward tried by court-martial for this offense and sentenced to discharge, but Assistant Secretary Roosevelt decided it was wisest to restore the Professor to duty. He, however, emboldened in his order of release, a severe censure and warning to the leader.

Professor Fanciulli is chagrined, for he had applied for re-enlistment. He contemplates removing to New York and organizing a band to rival Sousa.

Humored News of Andrew.

Christiana, Oct. 27.—Admiral Andrew, who has just returned from his tour of duty in the Arctic Ocean, is reported to be in poor health. He is suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, and is unable to leave his bed. He is expected to remain in the hospital for some time.

In case of the death of either daughter leaving no issue, but leaving a husband, one-half of the property then held in trust for such daughter is to be absolutely the property of such husband, the other half becoming a part of the residuary estate.

His Other Bequests.

Two brothers, Royal Henry Pullman and John A. Pullman, and the sisters, Helen Pullman West and Emma Pullman Fluhner, are bequeathed $50,000 apiece. The sisters are given equal shares in the furniture, pictures, etc., in the Belmar apartment house in the city of New York.

The wife of his brother, Charles L. Pullman, is given an income of $2,000, the sum to go to her son, William Pullman, upon her death.

Other personal bequests are as follows: Florence Sawyer, $20,000; Strawn West, $5,000; Bertha West, $5,000; Helen Fluhner, $5,000; Lewis Pullman Fluhner, $5,000; Mrs. Charles B. Smith, $5,000; Mrs. Charles H. Eaton, $5,000; William A. Angell, $10,000; Mrs. W. Bradford, of New York, $10,000; Charles S. Sweet, his private secretary, $10,000; and Miss Maria Louise Orr, $5,000.

The following amounts were left to "faithful employees": Arthur Wells, $5,000; William Wells, $3,000; and William R. Johnson, $2,000.

The household servants are to get $250 to $300 each. Thirteen Chicago charitable institutions are to receive $100,000 each, as follows:

Home for Self-Supporting Women, Hospital for Women and Children, Nursery and Half Orphan Asylum, Orphan Asylum, Home for the Friendless, St. Luke's Free Hospital, Illinois Humane Society, Relief and Aid Society, Old People's Home, Presbyterian Hospital, Newsboys and Bootblacks' Home, and the Historical Society.

Estate's Value About $7,600,000.

The testator states it was his purpose to found, erect and endow at Pullman, Ill., during his life a free school of manual training for the benefit of the children of persons living and employed at Pullman. The executors are directed to devote $1,200,000 for this purpose, $200,000 for lands, buildings and apparatus, and $1,000,000 for the maintenance, management and endowment of the school.

If the estate shall be more than sufficient to satisfy all the debts, trusts and legacies, the executors are directed to divide the excess into two equal shares and to add the same respectively to the two portions set apart in trust for the two daughters, who are to receive all the property which becomes a part of the residuary estate.

The sum bequeathed by the will amounts to about $7,600,000. The total value of the estate is shown by the portion for legacies to amount of $2,500,000, and the sum of $5,100,000 is personal property and $800,000 realty. Attorney Tunbells, who prepared the will, said that these figures are a conservative but fair estimate of the value of the estate.

Robert T. Lincoln and Norman B. Ream are the executors.

Says Her Boys Will Not Want.

George M. Pullman, Jr., was seen at the residence of his mother this evening, and asked if he was satisfied with the will of his father.

"It would be very hard form to talk about the action of my father," was the young man's reply; "therefore I have nothing to say."

"Is it true that you will make the attempt to secure a greater allowance?" "I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

figures are a conservative but fair estimate of the value of the estate.

Robert T. Lincoln and Norman B. Ream are the executors.

Says Her Boys Will Not Want.

George M. Pullman, Jr., was seen at the residence of his mother this evening, and asked if he was satisfied with the will of his father.

"It would be very hard form to talk about the action of my father," was the young man's reply; "therefore I have nothing to say."

"Is it true that you will make the attempt to secure a greater allowance?" "I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

"I am satisfied," said the young man, "that my father's will is the best that could be made, and I will not attempt to secure a greater allowance."

SPAIN WANTS $60,000,000 AT ONCE.

New Loan of $200,000,000 Decided Upon by Cabinet.

STOCKS STILL FALLING.

Financial Crisis the Chief Difficulty of the Administration.

MORE BIG GUNS ORDERED.

Government Keeps the War Fever Alive by Proclaiming Its Naval Preparations.

MORE DENIES INTERVIEWS.

By Frank Marshall White.

(Copyright, 1897, by W. R. Hearst.)

Madrid, Oct. 27.—Although the war fever continues unabated and has just received fresh fuel in the shape of an official announcement that the Cabinet council at its meeting to-day instructed the Minister of Marine to purchase immediately heavy guns for the ironclad Carlos Quinto, as well as for the new cruiser Reina Regente, now approaching completion at Ferrol, and that news had been received of the successful launch yesterday in England of the new Spanish destroyer Proserpine, yet the all-absorbing topic of the hour is the financial crisis, which is of surpassing gravity. It constituted the principal theme of the Cabinet meeting to-day, and in spite of the fact that the official report of the council to-night states that "the condition of the Treasury, although not very satisfactory, will permit us to pay current necessities, both in the colonies and at home, until when the Cortes meets we can obtain its approval to measures for obtaining new resources, if they are then required," yet I have reason to know that this is very far from representing the true condition of affairs, which is far more critical.

I learn, on authority which is beyond contradiction, that the Minister of Finance has already made a demand upon the Bank of Spain for the immediate payment of the $10,000,000 constituting the last instalment of the $40,000,000 loan contracted some time ago on a mortgage of the revenues from the custom house duties, and that at the Cabinet council to-day the Minister of Finance was intrusted by his colleagues with the duty of submitting to them at their next meeting the project for a new loan, which is to be of not less than $200,000,000. I also learn that it is not $12,000,000 that are so urgently needed by the Government to pay for expenses long overdue incurred in connection with the war in Cuba and in the Philippine Islands, but $12,000,000 sterling, that is to say, $60,000,000. Perhaps the best evidence of the reliability of my information in this particular, and of the failure of the official report of to-day's Cabinet meeting to make public the true condition of state finances, is that the Government stocks continued declining heavily throughout to-day, while the shares of the Bank of Spain fell five points.

The official report of the Cabinet meeting to-day intimates that the Cuban prisoners in the Spanish penitentiary and African penal settlement who have now been released have asked to be taken back to Cuba, and "express the utmost gratitude to the Spanish authorities for their release."

This is not an unnatural sentiment. But the opinion is pretty generally expressed here that most of the released prisoners will take to the field and join the insurgents as soon as ever they reach Havana.

Interviews Repudiated.

Subsequent to the Cabinet meeting to-night, the Minister of the Colonies, Senor Moret, with the object of demonstrating that the Spanish Government in granting reforms to Cuba is not yielding to pressure on the part of the United States, but merely putting into execution a programme adopted by the Liberal leaders a month ago, called particular attention to the fact that the declarations attributed to himself and to his colleagues, and which have appeared quite recently in French, English and American papers on the subject of Cuban reforms, have not contained one word that had not been made public months ago in his own speech about the matter at Saragossa, and in that of Senor Sagasta here at Madrid. Not the reforms themselves, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the details of the reforms, he insisted, but merely the de-

GEORGE HURLS NEW EPITHETS AT BOTH CROKER AND PLATT.

George: "If Guilty, Platt Will Go to Jail."

The Single Taxer Tells the Journal That He Has Already Taken Legal Steps to Secure Evidence to Send the Democratic and Republican Bosses to Sing Sing.

Henry George on Croker and Platt.

Crooks. Thieves. Robbers. Traitors. Creatures. Blackmailers. Corruptionists. Traders in Votes. Disgraces to New York. Siam-ee Twins of Corruption. They had better leave the country quick. I'll do my best to put them both in Sing Sing. Judge Pryor paid $15,000 for his nomination, and will not dare deny it. It cost the father of Judge Ingraham $22,000 to get him his place. Did Croker control Tammany from abroad? Damn it, everything shows that. But if I'm elected I'll allow no guilty man to escape, and, by God, I'll do as I said.

"Of course they will not have me arrested. I have uttered no libel against Croker or Platt or their creatures. They are beyond appeal. Every word of condemnation and censure that I have uttered against them I repeat. They are common thieves and blackmailers, robbers of the people, traitors to principle, common crooks and low-down corruptionists. Arrest me? Let them do it. They dare not. They know that my election means a coal-burner for them. And I am more confident to-night than ever that I will be elected."—Henry George in a special interview for the Journal last night.

THE candidate of the Jeffersonian ticket had just emerged from a conference with members of his Campaign Committee, and was about to leave his headquarters at the Union Square Hotel, to fill his engagements for last night, when he paused to renew to a Journal reporter his fierce attack upon the chiefs of the regular Democratic and Republican organizations.

Mr. George and his campaign managers believe that the denunciations of Croker and Platt have proved a popular and vote-making move. They have been told so by those who throng to their headquarters, and they show no hesitancy in repeating and emphasizing their utterances.

His bitter attacks upon Croker and Platt, themselves attracting widespread attention, have been supplemented by an arraignment of members of the judiciary. He has openly charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific. The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

The Journal has pointed out editorially the serious character of these charges, and has shown that they should be neither lightly made nor silently charged judges with having paid Croker for their nominations, and has made the charges specific.

What Do You Want?

Rent Rooms?

Yesterday Journal "Wants" gained 438 over corresponding day last year.

Advertise It in the Journal.

